

Educating the Educators Symposium

Ignite. Innovate. Motivate.

Are you passionate about healthcare education? Do you value investing in the development of your own education skills? If you're interested in delivering engaging, innovative and motivational education then this professional development opportunity is for you!

Unlike other conferences, the Educating the Educators Symposium will see you leave each day inspired by the people around you, building real and long-lasting personal and professional networks.

Our goal is simple; to build a community of passionate people who are committed to quality healthcare education, while empowering you with real world skills that you can take back to your workplace and immediately implement. This symposium will see four themed days, allowing you to become fully immersed in a topic and have time for reflection on your learning outcomes.

Tuesday 26 to Friday 29 November 2019

Participants can register to attend either the full symposium (all four days) or individual days.

The program for each day is 8.30 am – 5 pm.

Location: Mater South Brisbane Campus
Raymond Terrace, South Brisbane

Cost: Full attendance (4 days): $1,550 (incl. GST)
Individual days: $450 per day (incl. GST)

Who should attend:

Educators or clinicians who are interested in developing their healthcare education skills, networking, collaborating and joining a community of practice.

Meet our guest speakers:

Jesse Spur
Dr. Chris Nickson
Dr. Victoria Brazil
Dr. Jo Bishop
Dr. Richard Fryer
Murray Altham